Officially, Union Cemetery was established in 1748, a year after it's original land owner, Stephen Swezey, of Brookhaven, conveyed his land to his son James on 14 July 1747. Through many changes of ownership, along with parcels being subdivided, over the years... the Trustees of the cemetery finally took ownership of the 32 acre tract on 6 Dec. 1894.

BAYLES, ALBERT, E., b. June 14, 1839 d. age 25, killed in Civil War in 1864.

BAYLES, EDWARD, b. Decemeber 16, 1841 d. age 23, killed in Civil War in 1864

Both were two of three sons born in Coram, to Richard and Harmony (Swezey) Bayles. The boys were aged 7 and 5 when their father died and lived on the family farm with their mother. When she passed away they went to live with their Uncle Edward Swezey in Middle Island on the north side of Middle Country Road across from where Bartlett Pond Park is now located.

They enlisted in the Army in 1862 joining Company A of the 139th New York Volunteers. They eventually were sent to Fort Monroe Virginia. After moving being stationed at Williamsburg in Virginia, their unit saw the first action April

12th 1863. Battles increased in 1864, they wrote home in February that their unit lost 60-70 men. At 4:30 AM on June 3rd The Army of the Potomac began to march toward the Confederate lines. The Confederates opened fire with Union soldiers falling like bowling pins. Albert was shot first and as his brother tried to reach him he too was killed by a sharpshooter. Within a half hour 7000 Union soldiers lay dead or wounded. Edward and Albert were buried near the battlefield, and then later to a nearby national cemetery. Two monuments with their names were placed at Middle Island in their honor (Information excerpted from Longwood During the Civil War by Paul Infranco and Guy Mastrion 2002)

BAYLES, ALBERT E., was born December 23 1897 and died in June 1963 at the age of 66 of a heart attack at his home. He was well known in the community and had an insurance business that he inherited from his father Richard which began in 1877. He also was mechanically inclined and known to repair anything from watches to automobiles and took an interest in photography, photographing people and places and doing his own developing and printing. He left a brother Thomas and nephew Donald and was a member of the Middle Island Presbyterian Church for fifty years. He kept a diary which he began in 1899 and kept regularly until 1956 with other entries until 1961 that led to a book entitled "A lifetime in Middle Island" compiled by his nephew Donald Bayles in 2008. A portion of the information found in this project is a result of his memoirs. He also was a member of the Coram Fire Department during its earliest inception.

Elwyn , the son of Mr & Mrs Thomas Bayles of Middle Island. The young couple were on their way to a movie in Port Jefferson during January of 1941 when their coupe was hit head on by another on Middle Country Road near where the Island Squire is. The impact on the snow covered roadway was so fierce that both engines were rammed partially back into the vehicles. Marian died instantly and Elwyn died at Mather Hospital in Port Jefferson of internal injuries. Besides her parents Marian had four brothers and a sister, Elwyn had a brother Donald.

BAYLES, MARY SMITH, born on October 3 1851 and died June 3 1901 at the age of 50. The daughter of Henry Bayles suffered from what was described as paralysis of the throat and despite several operations, was rendered speechless.

BAYLES, RICHARD M., of Coram was born April 20 1810 and died June 26 1846 at the age of 36, just 11 days before his son Richard Jr would be born and when his other two sons Albert and Edward were 7 and 5 years of age. He was married to Harmony.

BAYLES, RICHARD M. JR., was born in Coram, March 23, 1846. and died November 4, 1930 at the age of 84. He was one of the most widely known and respected citizens, not only of his native Town of Brookhaven, but of the whole Suffolk country, while among historians, he was widely known. When he was 13 years old, his mother died and when he was 15, his two brothers, Albert E, and Edward F., of the 139th Regiment, were killed in the Civil War. After the death of his mother, her brother Edward Swezey took Richard and his two older brothers into his home, which he shared with his parents, his wife Cynthia and two young daughters Eliza Ann, and Alda. They lived in Middle Island on the north side of the Middle Country Road just east of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Bayles was educated in the common school and at Northville Academy. Mr. Bayles began his career by writing historical articles at the age of 18. He spent several years teaching in the schools in Coram, Eastport, Center Moriches, Manorville and Middle Island from 1877 to 1893. In 1872, he began his first important work, "Historical and Descriptive Sketches of Suffolk County." It was published in 1874. This led to his being engaged by W.W. Munsell & Co., publishers to write the history of Riverhead Town and Brookhaven Town for their "History of Suffolk County," published in 1882. The article on Brookhaven is the most complete and exhaustive ever written, and Brookhaven is indebted to him for having preserved more of our history than anymore with the possible exception of Benjamin F. Thompson. His next work was a history of Green Country, N.Y., published by J.B. Beers & Co., in 1884. In 1885, he published his "Handbook of Long Island" containing maps and illustrations and the only thing of the kind ever brought out by any other than the railroad company. His "City of Yonkers" appeared in 1885 in the "History of Westchester County" published by L.E. Preston & Co. Following this in 1886, he composed his History of Richmond County, Staten Island. This was followed by his "Newport County", R.I in 1887. Then came his "Windham County", Conn. In 1889 and this in turn was followed in 1890-1, by his last work, a two-volume history of "Providence County", R.I. All of the books are large and no one but a person with a genius for history or one of Mr. Bayles' patience and love of research, would or could have attempted them. Besides compiling these works, he found time to contribute articles for newspapers and periodicals and from 1886 to 1908, he wrote the Long Island articles for the Brooklyn "Eagle Almanac". In 1903, Mr. Bayles married Florence V. Rowland, of Millers Place. Two sons were born to them, Thomas and Albert. The former married Gertrude Benjamin of Center Moriches and has two sons Elwin and Donald. He was chosen by the town board to be the town historian and he acted in that capacity until his death. After the close of the World War, he made a roster of every person of Brookhaven who was in the service, including his or her war record. He assisted Roscoe C. Craft in compiling the "Directory of the public Schools" and the "Directory and Year Book of the public recently for the Second Supervisory Schools" Mr. Bayles home was on the Middle Country Road at the top of the hill a rising from Connecticut Hollow in Middle Island (where the City on The Hill Church is now located). He knew every inch of the country for miles around, and, being a surveyor of excellent caliber for many years, he picked up a wonderful fund of knowledge about places and people with whom he came in contact. He made copies of the names and dates from tombstones for miles around, abstracted data from old wills, ancient deeds in documents and had in his collection, many valuable historical genealogical data. Much of this he "carried in his head" and would converse about the people and their characteristics and the events of the 17th, 18th and early 19th centuries and familiarly as though they were but yesterday. People of all walks in life visited Mr. Bayles, seeking information about family ancestry, wanting a title searched, asking advice about a will, wanting a deed made out. His aid was sought by the lawyer the genealogist, the historian. He was an insurance agent, a realtor, and notary public. People who could not call on him personally, wrote for information and his correspondence was always extensive and, must have been a great burden as he invariably answered all his letters personally. He was a Christian gentleman of the old school. Sunday and prayer-meeting nights found him at the old Middletown Presbyterian Church. He was the oldest of the elders of the parish, was the clerk of the session as well as a teacher in the Sunday School. In the absence of the minister, he often conducted the meetings. Mr. Bayles was a true friend, a kind neighbor and a courteous man- one never too busy to help any who came to him for help or advice.

BAYLES, THOMAS RICHARD, was born in Middle Island February 4th 1895, the son of Richard and Florence, he lived in his parents house which he also used as his Insurance office. In 1910 Thomas took a business course which led to several bookkeeping jobs. He married Gertrude Benjamin in 1916 they had two sons Elwyn and Donald. In 1917 he worked for the Long Island Railroad at its freight office at Camp Upton which is now Brookhaven National Lab. he retired in 1958. In his retirement he used his interest and knowledge of local history and prepared several papers and booklets on the subject. He donated much of his collection to the Middle Island Public Library (Longwood), who then designated a local history room, the Thomas Bayles History Collection. He died June 29 1977 at the age of 82.

BRENNER, ELSIE VIERTEL, was born July 23 1885 in Brooklyn NY to Arthur and Anna Viertel of Middle Island died September 19 1966 at the age of 81 in Sanford Florida. She married her first husband, Fred in 1907 and second to Peter Brown, She was survived by five children Fred, Joseph, Elsie Faron, AnnMarie Lapinski and Mildred Schmierer.

BRENNER, FRED, Died in 1943 at the age of 81. The Brenner family lived 100 feet south of Middle Country Road, east of Bartlett Road. When the road was realigned, the house was between the old Road and new Road. Brenner and his wife operated a small store on the corner of Bartlett and Middle Country Road. The Brenner family made news in June 1928, when Fred Jr, aged 17 was assaulted by a neighbor Charles Diefenbach. The teenager and a friend Howard Swezey was walking along the "Bartlett Pond" which Diefenbach claimed was his property, part of a large tract of land he had purchased, while other claimed it was town owned. An argument ensued with young Brenner being struck in the back of the neck by a double barreled shotgun wielded by Diefenbach. He was charged with assault and Brenner charged with trespassing. The courthouse was filled with Middle Island residents supporting the Brenner family. A fence surrounding the pond was "heavily destroyed" sometime afterwards. A year later, local farmers claimed that the pond was wrongly fenced off eventually winning that case in court. Another son Joseph served in the U.S. Army during World War 2.

BREWSTER, DANIEL, was born in 1687 and died 1748 at the age of 61. He lived on the north east corner of Middle Country Road and Rocky Point Road where he had a farm from 1735 until his death. It is presumed that his is the oldest headstone in the cemetery. He was the Grandson of Reverend Nathaniel Brewster, the first minister of the "Old Town" Church in Setauket in 1655. Daniel was one of three brothers who were among the very first settlers in Middle Island. The hamlet, which had not yet been named, was previously called Middletown and Swezeytown. Brewster worked the farm and raised his family there. He used a portion of his farm as a burial ground for his family, where it is believed 30 members of the Brewster clan were buried.

The general store and tavern were owned and operated by John Bailey during the American Revolution. Subsequent owners were Bryant Davis and Orlando Randall. Randall farmed the property aggressively – so much so that he felt the need to remove all the headstones from the Brewster cemetery! He tossed them in a pile to be used as a hedge, where they remained for decades.

In 1937, town historian Osborn Shaw located the stones. Using inscriptions and family papers, Shaw was able to ascertain that the first burial was of Daniel Brewster in 1748, making it the oldest burial ground in Middle Island. In 1940, historian Thomas Bayles collected some of the headstones and placed them in the Union Cemetery, a few miles to the west

CHAPPEL, ALONZO, Died December 4th 1887 at his home near what is now known as Artist Lake at the age of 59. By far Mr. Chappel may be the most famous person buried in the cemetery. He was born March 1 1828 in New York City in the lower Manhattan area known as the Bowery to William and Maria Chappel. His father was a Tinsmith. At the age of nine, Alonzo reportedly contributed a portrait titled "The Father of His Country" to the American Institute Fair; by the age of twelve, he was regularly setting up his easel on the sidewalks of New York and charging $5.00 or $10.00 to execute a portrait of any willing passerby. He went on to study art and had his work in many galleries throughout the cities, specializing in portraits and depictions of famous battles and historical events. In 1848 he moved to Brooklyn where he continued his artistic career. Chappel's career flourished, but his personal life was marred by the death of his wife, Almira, June 14, 1863, leaving him a widower in charge of four children. Some years later he remarried Abbie J. Briggam, a widow with one son. Abbie and he may have had additional children. It is known that Chappel had a son named Alonzo and a daughter called Ollie, but little is known of them and nothing of any possible descendants. In 1869 the Chappels purchased a parcel of land along Glover's Pond near Middle Island in Long Island's Suffolk County. Around 1871 they built a house there, and he established a sort of art colony which resulted in the renaming of the pond to "Artist's Lake." The last years Chappel spent at Middle Island with his family should have been ones of quiet, for he had a career as one of the most prolific illustrators of the third quarter of the nineteenth century. They were marred by a stranger, who appeared at his door one morning and threatened him. Chappel tried to drive the man away, but the intruder, evidently insane, became violent and attacked the artist. To save himself, Chappel drew a revolver and shot the man dead. "The horror of this event," reported "The Brooklyn Eagle" a quarter of a century later, "haunted him during the remaining four or five years of his life". On July 20, 1885, he consigned for auction his library of 343 volumes on subjects ranging from history and biography to art and literature. Some of this information and a more detailed biography as well as his complete artistic works can be found at www.alonzochappel.org

He was honorably discharged in February 1908. He lived at 3048 W. 65th St. and worked as a laborer until he was commissioned as a Seattle police officer on January 1, 1909. On February 23, 1911 around 6:00 p.m., Officer Judson P. Davis, 31, was at police headquarters getting ready for a plain-clothes assignments with Officer Herbert C. Smith in the hope of catching some of the people responsible for a local crime spree. The assignment was to end at 8:00 p.m. Davis and Smith were close friends. Smith's wife had recently died, and he had moved in with Davis who was living at the Baxter Hotel, 518 Pike St. in Seattle. Shortly after 7:00 p.m., Davis and Smith were walking north on Boylston Ave. from Olive St. when they observed two men a distance ahead of them, walking north on the west side of the street. Davis and Smith thought they looked suspicious and decided to stop them. The two officers started walking faster. They caught up with the two men mid-block between Howell and Denny on the west side of the street. When the officers were about eight feet from the two, Davis ordered them to stop and put their hands up. One suspect, John Ford, turned around with an eight shot semi-automatic pistol in his hand, and ordered the officers to put their hands up. Officer Davis reached for his revolver. Ford fired and started moving into the street. The second suspect, Axel Nist, started running across the street with Officer Smith firing at him. One of Ford's shots hit Officer Davis in the leg just above the ankle. Davis went down on one knee. One of Davis's shots hit Ford, just missing the heart and lodging in his back. Ford went down in the middle of Boylston, paralyzed from the waist down. He was able to sit up and continue firing. Officer Davis fired five shots from his six shot revolver. He had the habit of leaving one chamber empty and resting the pistol's hammer on that empty chamber. When Davis fired his last shot, Ford had one bullet left. That bullet hit Davis in the shoulder and exited his back, severing his spinal column in the process. Officer Davis died almost instantly at the age of 31. He was un-married, and was survived by his brother, Harold Davis, in Coram, NY. Harold and his wife had a son born in 1918. They named him Judson P. Davis.
