

Publisher's Note:

The following document was originally published on a personal website ran by Frank S. Coleman (<http://home.sprynet.com/~nonfarby/oo1~1.htm>). That website had been taken offline some time in 2018. We searched through Google to find out if the site had been moved elsewhere, but it didn't appear that way.

We did manage to find this document through Archive.org, and put it into PDF format, and shared it on Interment.net to give Frank's writing a new home in hopes that genealogists and Civil War enthusiasts can still read it.

He had also written an historical document entitled, "A Small Community Goes to War: The Civil War History of Middletown, NY", which we also converted into PDF format, and republished on Interment.net, found here: <http://www.interment.net/data/us/ny/delaware/middletown-civil-war-soldiers/a-small-community-goes-to-war-frank-s-coleman.pdf>

Coleman had also launched an initiative called, "Hillside Civil War Graves Project". It was an effort to raise funds to repair and restore damaged grave markers of Middletown Civil War soldiers. This was documented on the above-mentioned website, but no updates were published about its progress.
